A GREAT CONTEST FOR BOYS

At the Mahoning County Fair in Canfield September 7, 8 and 9.

The boys' live stock judging contest will be a big feature at the county fair at Canfield this year. The Ma-honing County Agricultural Society desired to set aside a substantial fund for the educational premiums for the boys' stock judging contest and accordingly the county superintendent was instructed to co-operate with the extension school of the Ohlo State University in enlisting and instructing the boys for this contest. As a result, last March Mr. Pollock of the State University spent a week in the different schools of the county in in-structing the boys on actual stock As a result, the boys became judging. very much enthused over the project. The county superintendent is just in receipt of a letter from Wheeler stating that to date 159 different boys have enrolled in the contest which will be held on Wednesday, September 8th.

the week of the fair. Boys are being kept in touch with the contest by the State University by means of bulletins. For example, each one already enrolled has received a fine one on judging draft horses; another of judging dairy cattle; another on the dairy cow; and another on swine judging. the University is sending each boy enrolled a questionaire containing from 10 to 14 questions, all of which could be answered by a little observation of animals and the reading of the bulletins. All boys who answer

State University, will have their pa-pers graded and returned, The three boys whose total scores on all classes of stock judged place them first, second and third in the contest, will each be given a trip to Co-lumbus during the Farmers' week held city hospital last week for the remov in February, 1916. These three boys will stay in Columbus for a week where they will be given a course in stock judging at the College of Agriculture. Several other valuable prizes will be given. Since the fair board made its liberal allottment of prizes, R. E. Frederick of Boardman township has done a splendid thing to increase the interest, by offering a fine registered bull calf to the boys whose score is the highest in this contest. All influences put together are helping to increase the enthusiasm and earnestness of the interested boys. If any boy who is eligible according to the rules has not yet enrolled, he can do so by writing to the county superintendent of ools, Youngstown, Ohio, or to Clark S. Wheeler, Ohio State University, Co-lumbus, Ohio, for an entry blank and the splendid information that all of
